SAVE $1000 ON LIGHT CONTRACT

Town Council Finally Kills Municipal Plant Idea and Enters into Five Year Agreement with Gettysburg Company.

At a saving of more than $1000 a year over the old contract, the town council on Tuesday evening passed an ordinance granting to the Gettysburg Light Company the lighting of the borough for five years.

Messrs. Stock and Baughman, of the light committee, who all along favored and worked for a municipal plant were absent from the meeting and Mr. Trostle was left to champion their cause. Mr. Beard was absent on account of illness and all the other members voted for the ordinance which was at once signed by Burgess Raymond.

Under the old contract, Gettysburg paid about $2900 a year for light. Under the new arrangement all of the arcs will be replaced with nitrogen filled lamps while forty seven 60-candle power tungstens will be replaced with 80-candle power nitrogen filled lamps. Nine more lights than at present will compose the system. It was stated by those who favored giving the contract to the company that the new arrangement would give more light than the old. The new price is to be $1833.01 a year, as calculated by Mr. Gilbert from a plan submitted by him and approved by council.

The ordinance was not passed without the bitter opposition of Councilman Trostle. He said that the borough was tricked five years ago by the company into signing the old contract and that, in the new one, they would later "discover a snake". He said it was his belief that in a year or so they would find they were not getting the light they contracted for and that, in the end, the giving of the business to the Gettysburg company would be a mistake. "I wouldn't give it to them at $500 a year," he stated.

Mr. Trostle protested against action being taken Tuesday night saying that the committee had not had the opportunity to calculate the probable cost according to the recent bid of Mr. Turner and Mr. Keith answered that he thought they had had ample time. Mr. Keith further stated that, no matter when they made their calculations, they would bring in an adverse report.

"You members of the light committee," said Mr. Keith, "have lost sight of the entire purpose of this agitation which was to secure a lower light figure for Gettysburg. Instead, you have gotten into a controversy with the Light Company in which much bitterness has arisen and now, that our desire to save the borough a large sum has been accomplished, your antagonism for that company makes you oppose giving them the contract. I don't see how we, as business men, can accept the municipal light plan, when, under the new bids of the Gettysburg Light Company we can get light for $2000 a year or less."

During the argument Mr. Keith produced the necessary ordinance, already prepared, and it was adopted.

Other Matters

The borough tax rate was fixed at the same figure as last year, 7 mills general and 2½ mills special.

H. D. Geiselman asked that pavements be ordered at the lots of Jacob Raffensperger on the north side of East Middle street extended. The matter was referred to the highway committee with power to act.

Fire Chief Plank asked for a number of improvements at the engine house including re-papering, the installation of conveniences, repairs to the floor, and also asked for the repainting of the apparatus. The matter was referred to the property committee to report on the cost of the improvements. They were given authority to have the apparatus painted.

Council and Mr. Plank, representing the Gas Company, compromised on one-half the bill originally presented for the gas lights placed at the corner of Centre Square and Carlisle street.

Alley bridges in bad repair were reported by Mr. Gilbert and ordered fixed, using concrete and iron instead of wood as in the past.

Burgess Raymond made a number of recommendations regarding the regulation of automobile traffic which were referred to the ordinance committee.

MORE TESTIMONY IN BEALES CASE

Various Witnesses Called at Morning Hearing. Matter of Payment of Voters' Taxes is Taken up. Attorneys in Many Tiffs.

There was a slight delay in the opening of the Brodbeck-Beales hearing this morning while the appearance of a fresh stenographer was awaited, the one who served Tuesday devoting the day to reducing his short-hand notes.

During the early part of the hearing the following remarks were delivered by one attorney, addressed to another: "Have you any sense at all?" "It is a pity the opposing counsel is either not honest enough or does not know enough to ask proper questions". Expressions of like character or possibly less edifying were distributed throughout the day.

The first witness to take the stand was H. D. Bream who swore that he saw "Tug" Yohn receive a piece of paper after voting and take it to Dr. Markley's house. When Mr. Bream was asked if he thought money was used to influence votes in his, the First Ward, the remarks quoted above were delivered. When some degree of order was obtained Mr. Bream replied that he thought the election was properly conducted and he knew of no money having been used.

Harry Bumbaugh, tax-collector, then took the stand. He testified to having received orders to the approximate number of 125 from workers of both parties to pay taxes for voters. In this list he stated that Adam Myers, Robert Miller, Max Williams, W. S. Schroder, Dr. Markley, John Shearer and C. B. Tate each presented from four to thirty such orders, while among the Democratic orders were six each from Harry Gilbert and Otis Baughman. For the Republican orders the money was paid, with several exceptions, by Robert C. Miller and J. Louis Sowers.

On cross-examination Mr. Bumbaugh said that it was possible for the list of voters who had not paid taxes in the Third Ward, spoken of Tuesday by Baughman and Galbraith, to have paid these taxes to the county treasurer or to have paid taxes on property in some other ward which would entitle them to vote. He also replied that he thought the election was generally orderly.

Frank Penn, one of the inspectors from the Third Ward, said he sat where he could see everything that occurred election day and he saw no beer there; also that everything was entirely regular, that votes were properly counted and the election was generally very orderly, more so than usual.

Robert C. Miller, Republican county chairman, took the chair. His counsel approached him and another tilt occurred of more than the usual severity. The sympathy of the audience was plainly with the Beales contingent during these performances, vigorous applause greeting each sally of the local participants. He testified to having made two payments to the tax collector; the first from his own funds for which he was not reimbursed and "in pursuance of agreements with the signers of the orders"; the second by check from the party treasurer. Some of these men, he said, paid him later and he did not remember about others.

Prof. J. Louis Sowers next appeared and admitted having been active in the election of Mr. Beales. He vigorously denied having received $300 for his work and stated that he received a total of less than $24.00 for all expenses and labor during the campaign. He also stated that he had received no whiskey or beer. In addition to this, he said after some delay, that Mr. Beales gave him a Christmas gift of $100. Prof. Sowers also stated that he never paid any taxes except as a favor for Mr. Miller and that all his work had been conducted in a thoroughly honorable manner.

At this point I. N. Lightner, who served subpoenas on Brodbeck witnesses, was sworn to testify if he had properly served notice upon Dr. W. M. Keet. This subpoena was made in the name of William while Dr. Keet's Christian name is Wayne.

After much delay William F. Weaver took the stand. He acted as Democratic committeeman in the Second Ward and testified concerning the Republican and Democratic workers there on election day, also of the vote polled.

WAS LIFE LONG COUNTY RESIDENT

Mrs. Daniel Miller Dies at the Home of her Son in Huntington Township Aged Ninety Years. Has Large Number of Descendants.

MRS. DANIEL MILLER

Mrs. Abigail Miller, one of the oldest residents of Huntington township, died on Tuesday morning at 6:30 o'clock at the home of her son, John Miller, near York Springs. She was ninety years old.

Mrs. Miller had been in her usual health until about a week ago when she contracted a severe cold. Complications set in and her condition grew gradually more serious, her death finally resulting on Tuesday.

She was a life long resident of Adams County having been born near Idaville. She was the last surviving member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Little. For many years she resided in Idaville, leaving there four years ago after the death of her husband, Daniel Miller, to make her home with her son in Huntington township.

She leaves three sons, John Miller, with whom she recently resided; George Miller, of Iowa; and Edward Miller, of York. She also leaves 33 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren.

Funeral on Friday morning, meeting at her late home at 9:30 o'clock. Services and interment at Idaville. Friends will accept this as notice of the funeral.

REV. A. K. FELTON

Rev. A. K. Felton, a graduate of Gettysburg College in the class of 1872, died on Tuesday morning at North Philadelphia, Ohio, after an extended illness from a complication of diseases. He was a brother of Rev. E. Felton, of Baltimore, who is a frequent visitor here.

CLEARED LARGE SUM

A College Town Given before Large Audience.

Gettysburg's High School Seniors tempted their most ambitious play on Tuesday evening when they gave "A College Town" before a large audience in Walter's Theatre. That they succeeded admirably was shown by the hearty appreciation of the audience from start to finish and the coming graduates acquitted themselves in highly creditable fashion.

The play is a farce with all the complications that can follow a college prank in which one of the students impersonates the aunt of a fellow student. The real aunt appears of course.

The play cleared between $60 and $65 which will be used to purchase a gift for the school and also toward defraying a portion of the expenses to be incurred at commencement time.

The various members of the cast all acquitted themselves so creditably that individual mention is unnecessary.

BROUGHT LUNCH ALONG

Sign of Business not being Good, Thinks Correspondent.

The McSherrytown correspondent of the Hanover Record-Herald says: "One of our most prominent business men, on leaving for Gettysburg on business lately, was seen to fill his pockets with sandwiches, which he meant to eat, instead of buying a regular dinner at a hotel. Business is not too good in McSherrytown, but it is not felt that this is the best kind of an advertisement for a live town like ours."

GET DELAY FOR BERLIN BRANCH

Public Service Commission Grants a Continuance. William G. Leas Can Scrap the Road Following Forfeiture of Charter.

The Public Service Commission, of Pennsylvania, has granted an extension of the order requiring that the East Berlin Railroad be operated on and after February first. The extension is granted until such time as the Attorney General of Pennsylvania can take the proper proceedings to forfeit the charter of the company.

It is understood that this may require several months. It is said that the Attorney General will institute proceedings for that purpose as soon as the necessary data can be obtained.

The quo warranto proceedings will result in the forfeiture of the charter and, when the proceedings are terminated, the owner of the road, W. G. Leas, will be enabled to tear up the tracks and sell the equipment.

The present road can never be operated again after the termination of these proceedings and, if the residents of East Berlin desire railroad facilities, they will have to purchase the road before the quo warranto proceedings are terminated.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

All of their Children Home for the Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. David McGuigan, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday at their home on Chambersburg street. Mrs. Minnie Hummelbaugh, Mrs. Jacob Swisher, Mrs. Maurice McCullough, Miss Annie McGuigan and Robert McGuigan are the children living in Gettysburg. William McGuigan and Mrs. Harry Kehn live in York; Charles McGuigan, in Wilmington; and Norman McGuigan, in Harrisburg. Mrs. Catharine French, of New York; Mrs. Margaret Angell and James McGuigan, of York, sisters and a brother of Mr. McGuigan, and Miss Salome E. Schluter, also of York, were present together with all the children named.

The marriage of David McGuigan and Miss Helen Tate was performed February 2, 1865 by Rev. Mr. Deatrick at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tate, North Washington street.

WAYNESBORO A CITY

Board of Trade Proposes Extension of Borough.

The borough of Waynesboro will be enlarged. At a meeting held by the members of the Board of Trade it was proposed that the area be enlarged from 509¼ acres to 1,494¼ acres. This will add 2,500 more population to Waynesboro's population and bring the total up to over 10,000—bringing it into the group of cities of the third class, with the rights and privileges conferred by law upon such cities, including that of commission government.

DYNAMITE BRIDGE ON CANADA LINE

German Officer Damages Structure by Explosion.

WILL RESIST EXTRADITION

The Prisoner, Seized on Maine Side, Claims Protection of United States, as Offense Was Political.

Vanceboro, Me., Feb. 3.—An attempt to destroy the railroad bridge spanning the St. Croix river, which forms the international boundary line between eastern Maine and New Brunswick, was made.

The superstructure of one of the three spans of the bridge was damaged by dynamite. The attack on the bridge caused great excitement on the New Brunswick side, where rumors of a German plot spread rapidly, and resulted in an immediate investigation by the provincial authorities.

An inquiry was also begun on the American side, and this led to the arrest at a Vanceboro hotel of a man who gave his name as Werner Van Horn.

According to the police, the prisoner said he was an officer in the service of Germany, but at first refused to give his rank. The police asserted he admitted he exploded the dynamite under a section of the bridge, and that a dynamite cap and a plan of the bridge were found in his pockets when searched.

Van Horn later said he was a German reservist with the rank of captain that he had been in Mexico, and had vainly sought to join the colors. The officers said he denied having dynamite in his possession in Maine. He said he had received it from a man he never before had seen, after which he put the dynamite in place and set it off.

The prisoner was removed to the United States immigration rooms, where he was closely guarded. Deputy Sheriff Ross notified the United States marshal and the United States district attorney at Portland asking for instructions.

When taken into custody at his room in the hotel, Van Horn made no resistance. He seemed unable to speak good English. No papers were found to identify him. In a coat pocket he carried a German flag.

Asked why he had dynamited the bridge, the prisoner, the police say, made the simple explanation that his country was at war with Great Britain and that Canada was a part of the enemy's country.

The bridge is the connecting link between the Maine Central and the Canadian Pacific tracks, the Canadian Pacific having traffic rights over the former road from Mattawamkeag to the boundary.

This is the through route from upper and western Canada to the maritime provinces, directly connecting Montreal with the ports of St. John and Halifax.

Van Horn was made a prisoner of the state of Maine. To avoid possible complications, the Vanceboro authorities made no further move pending advice from the federal government. The Canadian authorities indicated that they would immediately make representations at Washington, with a view to extradition on the ground that the dynamiting had been done on the Canadian side of the border.

On the other hand, it was said that Van Horn would be defended against extradition, basing his claim for the protection of the United States on his assertion that he had committed an act of war and that his offense was political.

Railroad officials, after a careful examination of the bridge, declared that the explosion had been a failure as far as damage was concerned. Sleepers were blown out, the rails were twisted and a girder was damaged, but the foundation of the span was not injured and repairs can be made within a day.

TURKS LOSE 70,000 IN CAUCASUS FIGHT

Great Number Killed, Wounded and Captured by Russians.

Petrograd, Feb. 3.—Seventy thousand Turks were killed, wounded or taken captive by the Russians in the decisive battle in the Caucasus region, which ended with the rout of Enver Pasha's army at Kara-Urgan and Sari-Kamysh.

These figures are given in the Bourse Gazette, an official publication. One hundred and sixty thousand residents of Persia and Turkey have been left homeless through the devastation of the country by the Turkish armies.

The Turks attempted, with their best Nizam divisions, to effect an encircling movement by moving along the track of the Oltychal river, but the Russians encamped at Otto started out in a bitter snowstorm across a ridge, where they were invisible to the Turks. The noise of the elements was such that their approach was unheard.

Then, with bayonets fixed, the Russians sprang into the middle of a Turkish marching column, which in a few hours was thrown into blind confusion. Great numbers fled into side ravines and have not yet been traced.

GERMANS GAIN NEAR WARSAW

6000 Men Killed in Assault on Czar's Trenches.

NEW INVASION OF SERBIA

Archduke Eugene to Command Austro-German Force to March on Belgrade.

Petrograd, Feb. 3.—The Germans have begun assaults characterized in the Russian official statement as "ferocious and distinguished by great tenacity" upon the entire Russian front, in a new drive toward Warsaw.

The fighting reached its worst last Saturday and now continues in the same pitch. The Russians admit that part of the assault in the Russian line particularly the highly important territory of Borjow, on the road to Warsaw, has been successful, and that the Germans drove them back to the second line of trenches, but the Russians deprecate the value of any of the gains made by their enemy.

On the other hand, the Russians claim gains on the lower Vistula, and they say they were able to repulse atacks of the fiercest nature at other points.

Military readers of the communication of the war office say that they believe that the Germans feel that they have marked time long enough and that if Warsaw is to be won they must drive on with all their power regardless of the cost.

The fighting was so intense that at one point in the trench line near Borjow 6000 Germans were killed in one mile, the official statement intimates that fighting was almost as severe in many points along the coast line.

The fighting in the Carpathians continues, and during the past week on the front between Nijna Polanka and Loudovskil, the Russians captured seventy-eight officers, 4065 soldiers, four pieces of artillery and ten machine guns.

The fighting in the Carpathians is expected to decide for the period of the war the mastery of the three most important passes through the mountains—Uzsook, Dukla and Wyszok. The strategic value of these passes is indicated by the fact that Wyszok is almost due south of Lemberg, while Uzsook is in the same relative position from Przemyel and Dukla is situated similarly with regard to Cracow.

The Russians have been successful in repelling every endeavor of the Germans to assume the offensive in the vicinity of Mount Beskid and Mount Wyszok and continues to advance along the front from Nijna Polanka to Loudovskil. At a point near Mollmow a Russian detachment advanced upon the Germans and dislodged them from positions which threatened the heads of the Russian trenches. In this encounter the Russians used the bayonet freely and captured some machine guns.

A third attempt at the invasion of Serbian territory has begun, according to dispatches from Nish. This time the Germans have gone to the assistance of the Austrians, and a strong Austro-German army has been gathered for the task, under command of Archduke Eugene of Austria.

These troops have been concentrated along a line extending from Tekla to Schifla on the Danube river. Schifla is the junction point of the Hungarian, Rumanian and Serbian frontiers. The attack has been delayed by the rising of the Danube and the Save.

Kaiser Buys New York Bonds.

London, Feb. 3.—The Daily Express prints a special cablegram from its New York correspondent, saying the reigning Hohenzollern family of Germany purchased $51,500,000 worth of New York state bonds, during the last half of last year. This indicates, the paper says, that the far-sighted Kaiser was looking forward to possible abdication.

Wolves Devour Austrian Wounded.

Rome, Feb. 3.—An uncensored dispatch from Vienna says that the Austrian troops in the Carpathians are suffering intensely from cold. Many soldiers have been frost bitten. The wounded and dead, the dispatch continues, are being devoured by wolves, which attack outlying posts. The soldiers are compelled to use their machine guns on the wolves.

Fear Mines Sunk Ship.

London, Feb. 3.—Fears are expressed in Copenhagen, says a dispatch from the Danish capital to the Exchange Telegraph company, that the Danish steamship Marselisborg, which sailed from Penzance on Dec. 15 and Norfolk on Dec. 23 for Copenhagen, has been lost as the result of striking mines.

Von Kluk's Son Killed.

Copenhagen, Feb. 3.—Lieutenant Egon von Kluk, eldest son of General von Kluk, commander of one of the German armies in France, was killed at Middlekerke, in Belgium, on Jan. 26, during a bombardment of that port by British warships, according to information received here.

GERMANS KEEP UP DRIVES IN FLANDERS

British Rally After Reverse and Gain Lost Ground.

London, Feb. 3.—Spirited contests are in progress in the western war zone, the Germans having made attacks in force at La Bassée and along the coast.

The French assert that the battle at La Bassée has not resulted in a change of positions, while along the coast the German attack is directed at the recovery of the "great dune," an artillery position near Lombardzyde, which, however, remains in the possession of the allies.

The official statement of the French war office states that the Germans launched a fierce assault against the British lines at Guiney, near La Bassée, but the British rallied and in counter attacks not only regained all the ground they had lost, but took some German trenches in addition.

The German war office, on the other hand, declares that the Paris statements distort the truth.

A dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, says:

"The French army, which has recovered a strip of land about fifteen miles wide from the Swiss frontier as far north as opposite St. Die, has angered the retreating Germans, who are destroying every village they abandon, taking all the boys and old men with them and driving away the women and children by their sudden orders of evacuation. These refugees continue to arrive, in a lamentable state, at Basel and other points on the Swiss frontier.

"Thian is in flames, and even the deep snow has not prevented its being burned by continuous German bombardments. Cernay is practically destroyed and the fighting around the town continues.

"The artillery battle for the possession of Altkirke becomes more violent every day. The guns are buried under the snow on both sides to prevent their location by aeroplanes. The wives of all the German officers at Colmar and Strassburg, where the hospitals are full of wounded, have been ordered to leave."

TRY TO SINK HOSPITAL SHIP

French Say Germans Attempted to Torpedo Vessel in English Channel.

Paris, Feb. 3.—"A German submarine Monday made an unsuccessful attempt to torpedo the British hospital ship Asturias," according to a communication given out by the ministry of marine.

"This is a violation," the communication says, "of the formal clause of The Hague convention of 1907 regarding the attacking of hospital vessels."

The Asturias, the ministry said, was fifteen miles north northeast of the Havre lightship when the attack was made.

London, Feb. 3.—General Timpanchenoff, of the Russian army, arrived in London to consult with government officials. His mission is reported to involve the possibility of Japan's sending troops to help the Russians.

Wrack Dardanelles Forts.

Petrograd, Feb. 3.—Travelers from Turkey declare that the Anglo-French fleet bombarding the Dardanelles has destroyed four of the principal forts. Turkish officials, along the channel led to the Asiatic shore, it is said.

The Game of Small Pawns.

Now, remember, whatever virtue of goodness there may be in this game of war, rightly played, there is none when you thus play it with a multitude of small human pawns. If you, the gentlemen of this or any other kingdom, choose to make your pastime of contest, do so, and welcome; but set not up these unhappy peasant-pieces upon the green field of battle. If the wager is to be of death, lay it on your own heads, not theirs.—From "The Crown of Wild Olives," by John Ruskin.

DEATH RATE LOW IN RECENT WARS

Advanced Surgery Reduces Mortality, Statistician Finds.

MIDDLE AGES FEROCIOUS.

History Shows That in Old Times Combatants and Prisoners Were Put to the Sword—Absence of Reliable Data Regarding Losses in Present War.

Contrary to the impression that modern wars result in a greater number of deaths than those of the past, the very opposite is true, according to an article reproduced in the Tijd of Amsterdam. It is pointed out that this is largely due to the progress in surgery, the use of efficacious antiseptics, the great development of modern army sanitation and the high efficiency of the medical corps.

But the greater degree of civilization and the existence generally of a highly developed humanitarianism have also helped to reduce the numbers of dead of the battlefield, it is stated. In antiquity prisoners of war were hardly ever taken. The massacre followed the battle, and when males were carried into slavery they generally were not part of the defeated army, but members of the civil population of the country which had been invaded.

At Cannae the Carthaginians, for instance, lost only 5,000, but killed 70,000 Romans, or about 80 per cent of the entire force which opposed them. The Romans, on the other hand, suffered only a loss of fourteen dead in the battle of Chaeonea, but massacred 110,000 of the enemy, 90 per cent of the army they had defeated.

During the middle ages this state of affairs continued. Wounded and captives were killed without mercy, and the cities whose entire populations were put to the sword were many. During the thirty years' war a similar ferocity prevailed, but an improvement began to make itself felt in the "decimation" of prisoners of war. The captured soldiers were stood in line, and then every tenth man was executed, usually hanged on a nearby tree, with some sort of accident governing who the first "tenth" victim should be. Now and then it became necessary to apply this cruel system of selection as a measure of discipline to one's own troops, generally when a mutiny had to be coped with and the men refused to say who their ringleaders were.

Percentage in Killed.

Beginning with the Seven Years' war, the number of deaths in battle and from wounds received have decreased in the following percentages:

Seven Years' war.....	32
Napoleonic wars.....	35
Crimen war.....	35
Italian war.....	35
Franco-Prussian war.....	35
Chinese war.....	35
Anglo-Bor war.....	35
Manchurian war.....	35
Turko-Bulgarian campaign.....	35
Turko-Servian campaign.....	35
Turko-Greek campaign.....	35

The tendency of modern wars to show a constantly diminishing number of deaths is also indicated by some of the most important battles of these and other campaigns, as the following list of percentages of the losses through death during or after the action shows:

Borodino.....	30
Austerlitz.....	30
Waterloo.....	30
Solferino.....	30
Mukden.....	30
Laoyang.....	30
Lule Burgas.....	30
Tchaltala.....	30
Monastir.....	30

The absence of all reliable data on the losses so far sustained in the European war makes even an estimate impossible.

PRIZE RELIGIOUS ESSAY.

Will Be Offered In Connection With Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Through the generosity of a resident of California and in connection with the Panama-Pacific International exposition the National Education association is able to offer a prize of $1,000 for the best essay on "The Essential Place of Religion in Education. With an Outline of a Plan For Introducing Religious Teaching Into the Public Schools."

Religion is to be defined in a way not to run counter to the creeds of Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jew. The essential points to be observed are: "A heavenly Father, who holds nature and man alike in the hollow of his hand," the commandment of Hillel and Jesus of Nazareth, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself," the high ethical teachings and spirit of service and sacrifice indicated in the Sermon on the Mount.

Notice of intention to file an essay must be given the secretary of the association by April 1, 1915. Essays will be limited to 10,000 words and must be in the possession of the secretary by June 1, 1915. Six typewritten copies must be furnished in order that the preliminary reading may be done independently.

The right is reserved by the association to publish not only the prize essay, but any others which may be submitted in competition, copyright privileges to be vested in the association for all such.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR MARRIED BLISS.

Here are ten "commandments of matrimony" based upon the sermon "How to Be Happy Though Married," preached by Dean MacCormack in Los Angeles:

- 1—Thou shalt love thy wife or thy husband, as the case may be.
- 2—Thou shalt have a religious home and use it.
- 3—Thou shalt stay home at nights to the husband.
- 4—Thou shalt cook a decent meal and sew on buttons to the wife.
- 5—Thou shalt not gossip.
- 6—Thou shalt not blame thy mother-in-law, for she is seldom to blame.
- 7—Thou shalt counsel patience.
- 8—Thou shalt not be indifferent to thy wife.
- 9—Thou shalt not seek counsel of an unmarried woman as regards the raising of children.
- 10—Thou shalt not shrink from the responsibility of having children.

KAISER SETS EXAMPLE OF THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Cakes, White Bread and Luxuries Banned From His Table.

The kaiser and kaiserin are cutting down the expenses of the imperial household and teaching the German people a lesson in frugality. The standard of meals at court appears to be no higher than that of many private families in the west end of Berlin. This, at any rate, is the statement published in the German papers and given out officially.

The kaiser's chef has had no opportunity of displaying his inventive genius for new dishes since the outbreak of the war. Very few guests have been entertained at the palace, and the kaiserin has placed a ban on table delicacies. The kaiser ordered a trial meal with "war bread" last November, and since then he has ordered that it be eaten at every meal. A few weeks ago it was placed on the menu at great headquarters, where it is said it was greatly appreciated by the kaiser himself.

The use of white bread for the imperial breakfast table was stopped simultaneously with the prohibition in Berlin of all kinds of night baking. No fresh loaves are baked overnight at the palace, but every morning the court baker delivers a quantity of war bread sufficient for the next day's meals. This is warmed up for the emperor and the members of the court at each meal.

The kaiser's breakfast, when he eats it in Berlin, is simple, consisting of an egg, tea or coffee and war bread. Soup is served at 1 o'clock, and this is followed by a plate of meat or vegetables, but nothing else. The evening meal is less frugal. Potatoes are served in their skins, which are also eaten, says the Vossische Zeitung, and the kaiser permits both meat and vegetables to be taken at this meal. The kaiser's choice is generally a slice of cold meat.

Both at the front and in the palace in Berlin the kaiser lives with Spartan simplicity. His choice is restricted to thick soup containing chopped meat.

The kaiserin visits the kitchen every day, giving orders and superintending the cooking. "One cannot live sumptuously while our brave soldiers in the trenches are making the greatest sacrifices," she is reported to have said. Cakes, whipped cream and other luxuries are forbidden at court. When the children of the crown prince and other members of the imperial family are invited to afternoon tea a few crackers appear on the table, and even if the crown princess or the Duchess of Brunswick is a guest at dinner no extra dish is added to the simple menu.

WAR HORSE'S BRIEF LIFE.

Twenty Days His Average Existence, Declares American Contractor.

"Twenty days is the average life of a horse during the present war, according to an American horse contractor now in London. But the life of a horse nevertheless, he declares, is twice as long as that of a motor vehicle. The contractor said:

"Some horses last longer than twenty days, but they're exceptions, for the fearful condition of the roads puts a horse out of commission in less than three weeks. Motor vehicles are subjected to terrific wear as a result of bad roads and heavy loads. At the end of ten days the average motor lorry is ready for rebuilding and often for the scrap heap."

The computation is based on risks from explosives also.

MUST SWIM FOR DIPLOMAS.

No Graduations at Princeton Without Passing Water Test.

Unless the students at Princeton university learn to swim before graduation several members of this year's class will not receive their diplomas. A regulation made by the faculty in 1911 required students to test in swimming.

This regulation has not been carried out, but this year it is the intention of the university authorities to see that it is put into effect. Several members of the senior class have not as yet passed the test, which is to swim 200 yards, showing a mastery of two strokes.

landscape?" "What I want," said Mr. Newrich, the eminent contractor, with decision, "is something about a yard and a half long and a yard wide, to cover some cracks in the fresco."

PLAN AIR RACE OVER CONTINENT

Start From New York, Boston and Washington.

PRIZE MONEY OF $250,000

Score of Entries Expected in Transcontinental Aeroplane Contest First Week in July—Believed That Winner Will Make 3,500 Miles of Course in Close to Week.

Plans have been drawn up by representatives of the Aero Club of America and the Panama-Pacific exposition to hold the transcontinental aeroplane race the first week in July.

A total of $250,000 in prize money is expected and entries of a score of aviators, a third of them to fly from each of the three starting points selected—New York, Boston and Washington. The Aero club members are determined to make the flight a supreme test of aviation in America.

Each contestant will be required to carry a passenger to further prove the practicability of aviation, and a special prize for efficiency is expected to be offered by a well known New Yorker.

The exposition is expected to put up $100,000 for the race and the rest of the $250,000 is hoped to be raised by the Chambers of Commerce in various cities that bid as stopping places. An entry representing the city of Detroit already is being considered, it was said.

Possible Routes Suggested.

The routes from the three cities may be totally different or they may converge in the middle west. One of the proposed routes from Boston would take the aviators that start there along the great lakes and then through Canada along the Canadian Pacific railway.

The New York flyers may go to Chicago and then over the lines of the Union Pacific. The Washington bird men may be sent over the cotton states to New Orleans and then over the Sunset route.

Distances will be compensated for by required stops at specified places. In the Great Britain circuit race it was compulsory for the contestants to rest for twelve hours during the course of the contest, and rests will be made compulsory in the coming race. Walter Brock, who won the Manchester (England) to Paris race, sent word that the aviators could not be expected to make more than 375 miles a day. It is figured by the Aero club's experts that if the routes are about 3,500 miles the winner will make it in close to a week.

Samuel S. Pierce, the Bleriot instructor, who started the aviation corps for the Servian army, sent on data for the fliers about the Rockies which he collected while living in Denver.

General Plan Agreed On.

Thomas M. Moore, commissioner general of the Panama-Pacific exposition in the Atlantic states, held a conference with Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero club, and Henry Woodhouse of the board of governors of the club, and agreed on a general plan for the race. The club's representatives promised to endeavor to obtain the co-operation of the twenty-five Aero clubs in other parts of the country associated with the Aero Club of America.

Glenn H. Curtiss called at the club and said he could be counted upon to have some of his fliers in the contest. Maximilian Schmitt of Paterson, whose plane won the Fourth of July race, also said he would be glad to have an entry. J. A. D. McCurdy, the aviator, volunteered his services to work out practical details. Captain Thomas Baldwin also offered his.

Pierce, with W. Leonard Bonney, another aviator, mapped out a route from Washington that would take the aviators through Parkersburg, W. Va.; Cincinnati, St. Louis, Springfield, Mo.; Tulsa, Okla.; Childress, Tex.; Carlsbad, N. M.; Tucson, Ariz.; Yuma, Cal. and Los Angeles. They said they considered it a favorable one to flying.

SEES WORLD PHONE SOON.

Morton E. Westlake Sure Talk With Europe Is Near.

It will take only a few years before New York and all the cities of this country are in communication with Europe by telephone, it was declared by Morton E. Westlake, commercial superintendent of the Cincinnati Suburban Telephone company.

"I have the assurance of J. J. Cart, chief engineer, who directed the great work of opening up transcontinental communication by phone," said Mr. Westlake, "that it will be only a few years before the whole world is encircled by telephone wires and will be able to communicate with Paris or London without any more effort than we now talk to San Francisco. But when we have this service we will have to have a universal telephone language," he added.

To Reward Deserving Employees.

The Canadian Pacific railroad has added to its staff a "scout," whose duty it will be to travel over the system and discover those employees who are especially worthy of advancement. Incidentally he will report those found wanting, but his function primarily is not to make complaints, but to make doubly sure that the deserving are recognized.

Wise Wife.

"You persuaded your husband to join a glee club?" "Yes," answered Mrs. Higgins; "when he starts to sing at home I can now advise him not to tire his voice, and when he sings in the club I can't hear him."

W. A. Taughinbaugh said he saw Mr. Beales give John Yohn a slip of paper on election day but he neither knew what it contained nor where Yohn went. He was interrogated about party workers but knew nothing of importance.

The hearing was then adjourned to 1:30 p. m.

Afternoon Session

At this afternoon's session N. C. Redding testified that he had been told on election day about some one having received "election whiskey".

George Aughinbaugh, a member of the election board, refused to answer the question, "Did you during the day, ask people in the vicinity of the polling place to vote for the Republican ticket?"

The attendance during the afternoon was in excess of that at the morning session but at no time was the court room so nearly filled as at Tuesday's hearings. Both Mr. Brodbeck and Mr. Beales were present in the morning but Mr. Brodbeck had not returned at a late hour this afternoon.

Tuesday Afternoon

William D. Gilbert testified that he did not see any beer about the polling place and that there was no more leaving of the room than usual by election officers, that the judge of elections did not leave during the counting of the votes, and that every one who was challenged either produced their tax receipts or swore that their taxes were paid. He said he knew nothing about the election officers having been drinking.

J. J. Martin, Democratic judge of elections in the Third Ward, said that he was out of the polling place once or twice and then for only ten minutes, that he drank a bottle of beer in the basement with George Slonaker, inspector, but that he saw no beer in the room. A little before nine o'clock in the morning he refused to allow W. S. Schroder, Max Williams and Dr. Biggs to assist voters in marking their ballots. He refused to permit "Senator" Scott to vote but the inspectors over-ruled him.

Mr. Martin stated that he requested assistance in the counting of ballots and that he had received congratulations upon it being the most orderly election in the Third Ward for years from "excellent Republican gentlemen", Messrs. Hoke, Schroder and Williams—"good Republicans if there are any" The only persons with in the guard rail were invited in by the board, said the witness.

Dr. H. M. Hartman was next called and told of seeing men go behind the prescription case at the People's Drug Store and take drinks, but said that there was no more of this before, during, or after election than at any other time. Attorneys for Mr. Beales asked that this be stricken from the record as irrelevant and immaterial.

The last two witnesses of the afternoon rewarded the large crowd for a wait of several hours in the crowded Court Room. George Slonaker and Leander Martin were the men called.

Slonaker demanded his witness fee before he would testify and the money was quickly produced. He said the only beer about the Third Ward polling place on election day was in the basement of the Court House and that it had come from his own home. He denied that he had put $20 up on Beales' election but said "If I had had money to bet I would be just $20 richer now."

When Attorney Ruby asked for whom he voted the witness said "That is none of your business, but if I voted for Beales there must have been plenty of other Democrats who did the same thing." (Ovation from spectators.) "He got about 92 or 93 majority in our ward but by rights should have had the whole thing." (Another ovation.)

Leander Martin denied that he took an order from Beales for liquor. He said that he knew Gettysburg was a rather dry town on election day and Sunday so that he had taken the precaution of going to Hanover the day before and securing as much as he thought necessary. Asked concerning his party affiliations, he said "I am a Prohibitionist to a certain extent."

"You take a drink when you are invited, don't you," asked Mr. Ruby and the prompt reply was "Try me and see."

"You drink most of the time, don't you?" again asked the attorney "Oh, I am respectable for days at a time like the rest of the attorneys", Martin answered.

Adjournment was taken at 3:45 to allow the stenographer additional time to reduce his notes.

DON'T NEGLECT That Sale Advertising

You are going to have a sale, you say, that should amount to a good bit over $1000 if you get good prices.

To get good prices you must have the bidders—the people with money. Those are the people who read the news papers.

They read the sale advertising to see where they may buy what they want. Your neighbors all know what you have to sell. It is the man who lives five miles away that will look to the paper to find what you offer; and two times out of three he the best bidder.

Don't let him miss seeing your ad. It may cost $1.00 or so more to advertise thoroughly than it would to do it "half-way;" but if that $1.00 gets you a single bidder the advertisement will pay for itself.

Experience here has taught us that it pays.

CHAPTER I—Warrington, an American adventurer, and James, his servant, with a caged parrot, the trio known up and down the Irrawaddy as Parrot & Co., travel along the river in the landing boat for Warrington to cash a draft for $50,000 rupees.

CHAPTER II—Elsa Chetwood, rich American girl tourist, sees Warrington come aboard the boat at the landing and, amazed at his likeness to her fiancé, Arthur Ellison, asks the purser to introduce her. Conservative English passengers are shocked at her breach of the conventionalities.

CHAPTER III—The purser tells Elsa that Warrington, the outcast adventurer, has beaten a syndicate and sold his oil claims for $20,000. Warrington puts Elsa and warns her against acquaintance with unknown adventurers—himself, in fact.

CHAPTER IV—Warrington and Elsa pass two golden days together on the river. Martha, Elsa's companion, warns her that there is gossip.

CHAPTER V—In Rangoon Warrington backs his draft, pays old debts, and while waiting in his old lodgings overhears and interferes in a row over cards in the next room.

CHAPTER VI—Warrington finds that the row in the next room is caused by an enemy, Newell Craig, and threatens to shoot him unless he leaves town. Elsa goes for a walk with Martha, is annoyed by Craig and stabs him with a hatpin. Warrington bids Elsa good-by. She does not tell him that she is to sail on the same ship for Singapore.

CHAPTER VII—Martha writes to Arthur Ellison of the rapidly growing friendship between Elsa and the outcast American adventurer. Warrington discovers Elsa on the Singapore steamer and realizes his hopeless love and his duty to protect her against himself. Elsa tells him of her engagement.

CHAPTER VIII—Warrington avoids Elsa, who thinks he may be ill and makes inquiries, regardless of the misinterpretation of her concern. Craig is aboard, is warned by Warrington and calls him Paul, so letting him know that his chivalry and loyalty of ten years before have gone for nothing.

CHAPTER IX—Warrington ceases to avoid Elsa. Craig stirs up evil gossip. Elsa tells Warrington of the hatpin incident and he hunts up Craig on murder bent, only to find him stretched out drunk on deck.

CHAPTER X—Warrington turns the hose on Craig. He tells Elsa that he is a man under a cloud and to be avoided, but Elsa refuses. She gets the cut direct from society passengers.

CHAPTER XI—At Penang Mallow, who drowns Warrington from his plantation when he learned his story, comes aboard. Warrington tells Elsa that Mallow and Craig both will tell that he spent money that did not belong to him over the gambling table to Craig, and asks her not to speak to him again.

CHAPTER XII—Mallow baits Craig, who keeps his temper. At Singapore Elsa calls on her father's old friend, the American consul general. Mallow also calls and relates the steamer gossip about Elsa.

CHAPTER XIII—Warrington calls on the consul general and sends a cable to the Andes Construction company, offering to restore the stolen money if they will lift the ban. Elsa defends Warrington to the consul general, who is dubious.

CHAPTER XIV—Elsa dines at the consul general's and meets the old English colonel who cut her on the ship. He apologizes, talks with her about conventional society rules and tells her that Warrington's real name is Paul Ellison.

CHAPTER XV—Elsa is told by Mallow and Craig, a Chinaman who robs Warrington of his letter of credit at the hotel.

CHAPTER XVI—Awake and brooding over the astounding knowledge that Paul Ellison is her fiancé's brother, Elsa hears the struggle in Warrington's room and, going into the hall, finds the letter of credit where the thief in his flight has dropped it.

CHAPTER XVII—Warrington, or Ellison, is cabled that he can come home. He looks up Mallow and Craig and soundly whips them both.

CHAPTER XVIII—Elsa writes a letter to her fiancé, telling him what she has discovered, and one to Ellison, calling him to her, but finds that he has gone away. She goes in search of him.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Two Brothers.

From port to port, sometimes not stepping off the boat at all, moody, restless and irritable, Warrington wended his way home. There was nothing surprising in the fact that he never inquired for mail. Who was there to write? Besides, he sought only the obscure hotels, where he was not likely to meet any of his erstwhile fellow passengers. The mockery and uselessness of his home-going became more and more apparent as the days slipped by. Often he longed to fly back to the jungles, to James, and leave matters as they were. Here and there, along the way, he had tried a bit of luxury; but the years of economy and frugality had robbed him of the ability to enjoy it. He was going home to what? Surely there would be no welcome for him at his journey's end. He would return after the manner of prodigals in general, not scriptural, to find that he was not wanted. Of his own free will he had gone out of their lives.

He fought grimly against the thought of Elsa; but he was not strong enough to vanquish the longings from his heart and mind. Always when alone she was in fancy with him, now smiling amiably into his face, now peering down at the phosphorescence seething alongside, now standing with her chin uplifted, her eyes half shut, letting the strong winds strike her full in the face. Many a "good-night" he sent over the seas. An incident; that would be all.

His first day in New York left him with nothing more than a feeling of foreboding and oppression. The expected exhilaration of returning to the city of his birth did not materialize. So used to open spaces was he, to distances and the circle of horizons, that he knew he no longer belonged to the city with its Himalayan gorges and canyons, whose torrents were human beings and whose glaciers were the hearts of these. A great loneliness bore down on him. For months he had been drawing familiar pictures, and to find none of these was like coming home to an empty house. The old life was indeed gone; there were no threads to resume. A hotel stood where his club had been; the house in which he had spent his youth was no more. He wanted to leave the city; and the desire was with difficulty overcome.

Early the second morning he started downtown to the offices of the Andes Construction company. He was extraordinarily nervous. Cold sweat continually moistened his palms. Change, change, everywhere change; Trinity was like an old friend. When the taxi-driver threw off the power and indicated with a jerk of his head a granite shaft that soared up into the blue, Warrington asked: "What place is this?"

"The Andes building, sir. The construction company occupies the top floor."

"Very good," replied Warrington, paying and discharging the man.

From a reliquary of the Dutch, an affair of red brick, four stories high, this monolith had sprung. With a sigh Warrington entered the cavernous doorway and stepped into an "express elevator." When the car arrived at the twenty-second story, Warrington was alone. He paused before the door of the vice-president. He recalled the "old man," thin-lipped, blue-eyed, eruptive. It was all very strange, this request to make the restitution in person. Well, he would soon learn why.

"A Man Like You Wasn't Made for Idleness."

He drew the certified check from his wallet and scrutinized it carefully. Twelve thousand, eight hundred dollars. He replaced it, opened the door, and walked in. A boy met him at the railing and briskly inquired his business.

"I have an appointment with Mr. Elmore. Tell him that Mr. Ellison is here."

The boy returned promptly and signified that Mr. Elmore was at liberty. But it was not the "old man" who looked up from a busy man's desk. It was the son; so far, the same familiar face Warrington had seen since his arrival. There was no hand shaking; there was nothing in evidence on either side to invite it.

"Ah! Sit down, Paul. Let no one disturb me for an hour," the young vice-president advised the boy. "And close the door as you go out."

other? no asked.

"What? You worked four years with this company and don't recollect that portrait?"

"Frankly, I never noticed it before." Warrington placed the certified check on the desk.

"With interest," he said. The vice-president cracked it, ran his fingers over his smooth chin, folded the check and extended it toward the astonished wanderer.

"We don't want that, Paul. What we wanted was to get you back. There was no other way. Your brother made up the loss the day after you went away. There was no scandal. Only a few of us in the office knew. Never got to the newspapers."

It was impossible for Warrington to digest this astounding information at once. His mind could only repeat the phrases: No scandal, only a few of us in the office knew, never got to the newspapers. For ten years he had hidden himself in wildernesses, avoided hotels, read no American newspapers, never called for mail. Oh, monumental fool!

"And I could have come home almost at once!" he said, checked, addressing the crumpled check in his hand rather than the man in the swivel chair.

"Yes. I have often wondered where you were, what you were doing. You and your brother were upper-classmen. I never knew Arthur very well; but you and I were chummy, after a fashion. Arthur was a little too bookish for my style. Didn't we use to call you Old Galahad? You were always walloping the bullies and taking the weaker chaps under your wing. To me, you were the last man in the world for this business. Moreover, I never could understand, nor could father, how you got it, for you were not an office man. Women and cards, I suppose. Father said that you had the making of a great engineer. Fierce place, this old town, waving his hand toward the myriad sparkling roofs and towers and spires. "Have to be strong and hard-headed to survive it. Built anything since you've been away?"

"In Cashmir." To have thrown away a decade!

"Glad you kept your hand in. I dare say you've seen a lot of life." To the young man it was an extremely awkward interview.

"Yes; I've seen life," dully. "Orient, mostly, I suppose. Your letter about the strike in oil was mighty interesting. Heap of money over there, if they'd only let us smart chaps in to dig it up. Now, old man, I want you to wipe the slate clear of these ten years. We'll call it a bad dream. What are your plans for the future?"

"Plans?" Warrington looked up blankly. He realized that he had made no plans for the future.

"Yes. What do you intend to do? A man like you wasn't made for idleness. Look here, Paul; I'm not going to beat about the bush. We've got a whopping big contract from the Chinese government, and we need a man to take charge, a man who knows and understands something of the yellow people. How about a salary of ten thousand a year for two years, to begin in October?"

Warrington twisted the check. Work, rehabilitation.

"Could you trust me?" he asked quietly.

"With anything I have in the world. Understand, Paul, there's no philanthropic string to this offer. You've pulled through a devil of a hole. You're a man. I should not be holding down this chair if I couldn't tell a man at a glance. We were together two months in Peru. I'm familiar with your work. Do you want to know whose portrait that is up there? Well, it's General Chetwood's, the founder of this concern, the silent partner. The man who knew kings and potentates and told 'em that they needed bridges in their back yards. This building belongs to his daughter. She converted her stock into granite. About a month ago I received a letter from her. It directly concerned you. It seems she learned through the consul general at Singapore that you had worked with us. She's like her father, a mighty keen judge of human nature. Frankly, this offer comes through her advice. To satisfy your self, you can give us a surety bond for fifty thousand. It's not obligatory, however."

Elsa Chetwood. She had her father's eyes, and it was this which had drawn his gaze to the portrait. Chetwood; and Arthur had not known any more than he had. What irony! Ten years wasted . . . for nothing! Warrington laughed aloud. A weak man seized him, like that of a man long gone hungry.

"Back up, Paul," warned the good Samaritan. "All this kind of knocks the wind out of you. I know. But what I've offered you is in good faith. Will you take it?"

"Yes," simply.

"That's the way to talk. Supposing you go out to lunch with me? We'll talk it over like old times."

"No. I haven't seen . . ."

"To be sure! I forgot. Do you know where they live, your mother and brother?"

"No. I expected to ask you."

The vice-president scribbled down the address. "I believe you'll find them both there, though Arthur, I understand, is almost as great a traveler as you are. Of course you want to see them, you poor beggar! The southwestern will pull you almost up to the door. After the reunion, you hike back here, and we'll get down to the meat of the business."

"John," said Warrington, huskily, "you're a man."

without its touch of envy. "You'd better be off. Hustle back as soon as you can." Elmore offered his hand now. "Gad! but you haven't lost any of your old grip."

"I'm a bit dazed. The last six months have loosened up my nerves."

"Nobody's made of iron."

"I'd sound hollow if I tried to say what I feel. I'll be back a week from today."

"I'll look for you."

As the door closed behind Warrington, the young millionaire sat down, scowling at a cubby hole in his desk. He presently took out a letter postmarked Yohohama. He turned it about in his hands, musingly. Without reading it (for he knew its contents well), he thrust it back into the cubby hole. Women were out of his sphere. He could build a bridge within a dollar of the bid; but he knew nothing about women beyond the fact that they were always desirable.

A few monosyllables, a sentence or two, and then, good day. The average man would have recounted every incident of note during those ten years. He did not admire Warrington any the less for his reticence. It took a strong man to hold himself together under all these blows from the big end of fortune's horn.

Paul was a born engineer; Arthur had entered the office as a makeshift. Paul had taken eight thousand one day, and decamped. Arthur had refunded the sum, and disappeared. Elmore could not understand, nor could his father. Perhaps some of the truth would now come to light. Somehow, Paul, with his blond beard and blonder head, his bright eyes, his tan, his big shoulders, somehow Paul was out of date. He did not belong to the times.

And Elsa had met him over there; practically ordered (though she had no authority) that he should be given a start anew; that, moreover, she would go his bond to any amount. Funny old world! Well, he was glad. Paul was a man, a big man, and that was the sort needed in the foreign bridge building. He rolled down the top of his desk and left the building. He was in no mood for work.

The evening of the third day found Warrington in the baggage car, feeding a dilapidated feather-molting bird, who was in a most scandalous temper. Rajah scattered the seeds about, spurned the banana-tip, tilted the water cup and swashbuckled generally. By and by, above the clack-clack of wheels and rails, came a crooning song. The baggage man looked up from his waybook and lowered his pipe. He saw the little green bird pause and begin to keep time with its head. It was the Urdu lullaby James used to sing. It never failed to quiet the little parrot. Warrington went back to his Pullman, where the porter greeted him with the information that the next stop would be his. Ten minutes later he stepped from the train, a small kitbag in one hand and the parrot cage in the other.

He had come prepared for mistake on the part of the natives. The single smart cabman lifted his hat, jumped down from the box, and opened the door. Warrington entered without speaking. The door closed, and the coupe rolled away briskly. He was perfectly sure of his destination. The cabman had mistaken him for Arthur. It would be better so. There would be no after complications when he departed on the morrow. As the coupe took a turn, he looked out of the window. They were entering a driveway lined on each side of which were chestnuts. Indeed the house was set in the center of a grove of these splendid trees.

Warrington went up the broad veranda steps and pulled the old-fashioned bell cord. He was rather amazed at his utter lack of agitation. He was as calm as if he were making a call upon a casual acquaintance. His mother and brother, whom he had not seen in ten years! The great oak door drew in, and he entered unceremoniously.

"Why, Marse A'thuh, I d'n't see yo go out!" exclaimed the old negro servant.

"I am not Arthur; I am his brother Paul. Which door?"

Po-payed, the old negro pointed to a door down the hall. Then he leaned against the banister and caught desperately at the spindles. For the voice was not Arthur's.

Warrington opened the door, closed it gently and stood with his back to it. At a desk in the middle of the room sat a man, busy with books. He raised his head.

"Arthur, don't you know me?"

"Paul?"

The chair overturned; some books thudded dully upon the rug. Arthur leaned with his hands tense upon the desk. Paul sustained the look, his eyes sad and his face pale and grave.

BRITAIN STARTS STARVATION WAR

Bans Food of All Kinds Sent to Her Foes.

TO SEIZE SHIPS AND CARGOES

Notifies United States That Foodstuffs Sent to Germany, Austria or Turkey Will Be Considered Contraband.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Great Britain notified the United States, although not in official form, that foodstuffs of any kind destined for Germany, Austria and Turkey would be regarded as contraband of war.

This action is the result of the recent German order, whereby that government will take over all grain in Germany for common use.

Because the steamer Wilhelmina sailed from New York for Bremen before the issuance of the decree, it is understood that her cargo of food for German civilians will be paid for and appropriated by the British government and the ship permitted to go free.

Hereafter, food-laden ships sailing from the United States directly for German ports or for neutral ports in Europe, where it appears the cargo ultimately may reach Germany, will be subject, under Great Britain's contention, to seizure outright, ship and cargo, without compensation.

The state department is considering this latest announcement of the British government, but thus far has not committed itself upon it.

The state department has been unofficially informed, it was announced, that Great Britain will seize the cargo of the steamship Wilhelmina, destined for Bremen, and all other American shipments to Germany, as a result of the German government's assumption of control over food distribution.

Germany Seizing All Grain.

Rotterdam, Feb. 3.—The Courant learns that the German War Grain company, an organization formed to acquire all the available grain in Germany and store it until next May, has seized more than 3,000,000 tons of grain. The paper says none of this foodstuff would be placed at public disposal before summer.

Bread Riots in Italy.

Rome, Feb. 3.—Meetings in protest against the high price of bread continue to be held in various provincial towns. On the island of Sardinia the price of wheat has reached about $10 a quintal (220.46 pounds), which exceeds the price during the crisis in 1898. Mobs in some of the villages have attacked the bakeries, and the municipal authorities have been forced to distribute bread.

List of Contraband Growing.

London, Feb. 3.—Gradually the economic phases of the war are becoming more apparent in Great Britain.

Military activities now are overshadowed by the blockade of the North sea and the strict measures the navy is enforcing against German commerce and trade with neutrals. From time to time the contraband list has lengthened, as it became possible for English officials to make a more thorough study of the needs of their adversaries and the probable sources of supplies. Every week England is increasing the list of articles whose exportation from the English Isles is prohibited.

EX-GOV. IN DIVORCE SUIT

Yates Accused of Hugging Woman on Train Whenever Whistle Blew.

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—Richard D. Yates, ex-governor of Illinois, is named as co-respondent in a divorce complaint filed here by Edward R. Freeman, a photographer, of Eureka, Cal., against Emma B. Freeman.

The complaint alleges that Mrs. Freeman and Yates traveled together from Eureka to San Francisco in July, 1913.

Among the charges made by Freeman against his wife are:

"That she permitted Yates to hug her in every tunnel the train went through, at every bridge and every time the whistle blew for a crossing."

"That she celebrated her arrival in San Francisco with him by a jubilee at a public cafe."

"That she allowed Richard Seely, under which name Yates is alleged to have traveled, to visit her room at a hotel in Willits, Cal."

The couple met, it is said, when Yates delivered a Chautauqua lecture in Eureka, in 1913.

Mr. Yates' father, Richard Yates, also was governor of Illinois.

Will Not Re-Try Mrs. Carman.

New York, Feb. 3.—District Attorney Smith, of Nassau county, has denied that he intends bringing Mrs. Florence Carman to trial again soon for the murder of Mrs. Lulu Bailey, as was reported. Neither Mrs. Carman nor her counsel, George Levy, he said, had indicated that they desired him to try the case again.

J. J. Durkin Scranton Postmaster. Washington, Feb. 3.—President Wilson selected John J. Durkin as postmaster of Scranton, Pa. The nomination was prepared for the senate.

U. S. ARMS STOLEN BY MEXICAN BAND

Thieves Cross Border and Rob New Mexico Armory.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 3.—General John J. Pershing was notified that the armory of the New Mexico National Guard at Silver City, N. M., had been broken into some time between Saturday night and Sunday night and the arms and ammunition stolen.

The message states that Mexicans are known to have robbed the place, and it is believed the arms and ammunition are being taken to Mexico. Thirty rifles and 5000 rounds of ammunition were procured.

General Pershing telegraphed the United States border guard to redouble its vigilance to prevent the munitions being taken into Mexico.

Villa Again Reported Dead.

Mexico City, Feb. 3.—Colonel Serrano, chief of General Obregon's staff, telegraphed General Carranza as follows:

"I have the honor to communicate that a Constitutionalist chief, arriving here from Tepic, by way of Irapuato, says it is reported in the latter place that General Villa died as the result of wounds inflicted at Aguas Calientes by Colonel Rodolfo Pizarro. The report emanates from Villa sources."

TO IMPROVE VALLEY FORGE

Legislature Asked For $188,150 to Enlarge Park.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 3.—The Brumbaugh administration measure under which it is proposed to enlarge Valley Forge Park by including all of the original site of Washington's encampment, was introduced in the legislature by Samuel A. Whitaker, of Chester county.

An appropriation of $188,150 is provided in the bill, of which sum $105,000 is for the purchase by condemnation of additional land.

It is proposed to restore the forts and redoubts as nearly as possible to their original condition, and $4000 is specified to begin that part of the work.

It is also the intention to build shelter houses in the state park. This was former Governor Pennypacker's conception of a lasting memorial to the sufferings endured by the Continental army during the severe winter of 1777-1778, when the British army under General Howe occupied Philadelphia.

Nestor of Lehigh Bar Dies.

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 3.—Colonel Jacob S. Dillinger, nestor of the Lehigh county bar and of the Allentown Masonic fraternity, died of debility at the age of seventy-three years. He was admitted to the bar in 1861, and served in McClellan's army in the Civil War.

British Lose 1000 in Fight, Say Turks.

Constantinople, Feb. 3.—The Turkish military authorities at Basra report that the British lost 1000 men in killed and wounded in a battle with Turks on Jan. 29 near SoKasso, in the Persian Gulf sphere of operations.

Explaining Gravitation's Law.

If you ask a scientific man why a stone falls to the ground he will tell you that he doesn't know. Not long ago he would have replied that it fell to the ground because the earth and stone attract one another. The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

COLD WEATHER PIES.

EAT pies are popular in England. They are made with any meat and often have a crust of pastry. Those made with beef are the most popular.

Baked Meat Pie.—Take one and a half pounds of beef, a quart of cut potatoes, half a cupful of cut onion, half a cupful of finely cut carrot, two tablespoonfuls of finely cut parsley, a teaspoonful of salt, one-third teaspoonful of paprika and a tablespoonful of flour. Wash the meat, cut in small pieces, put into a saucepan, cover with boiling water and boil slowly for two and a half hours; then add the onion, carrot, potatoes, salt, paprika and boil for half an hour. There must be a pint of gravy. Mix the flour with a little cold water, add and boil a few minutes. Line bakepan with crust, pour in the meat and vegetables, cover and brush the top with cold milk and bake for twenty minutes, or until light brown.

Macaroni in This.

THE CUNNING OF CROWS.

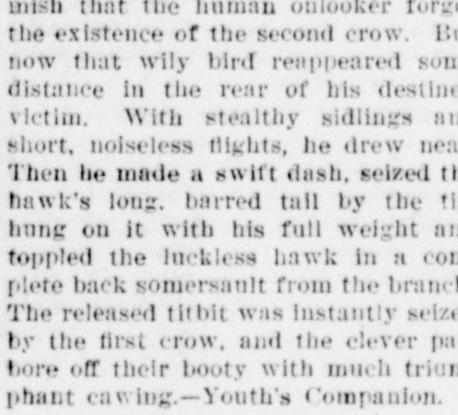

In India These Birds Have Been Labeled "Shreds of Satan."

Travelers in the orient have much to say about the Indian crow, a bird that for uncanny knowings and pranks and audacity has perhaps no equal. Corvus splendens—thus have ornithologists flatteringly labeled him. But a naturalist who knows the Indian crows at first hand has called them "shreds of Satan, cinders from Tartarus." To give these impish creatures their due, however, it should be said that life in India is not a little enlivened by their presence. A correspondent witnessed the following incident:

A small hawk had seized a little bird and perched on a leafless branch to devour his prey. The spectacle drew two crows to the spot. They hopped and flapped from branch to branch, noisily discussing the strategy of their intended raid.

Then one of them quietly slipped away through the surrounding foliage. At the same time his mate flew in front of the perching hawk and, hovering within a foot of his beak, maintained a bustling menace of snatching the titbit. That effectively compelled the attention of the hawk. His prey firmly grasped beneath his feet, he angrily hissed and lunged at the hovering nuisance. So lively was the skirmish that the human onlooker forgot the existence of the second crow. But now that will bird reappeared some distance in the rear of his destined victim. With stealthy sidings and short, noiseless flights, he drew near. Then he made a swift dash, seized the hawk's long, barred tail by the tip, hung on it with his full weight and toppled the luckless hawk in a complete back somersault from the branch. The released titbit was instantly seized by the first crow, and the clever pair bore off their booty with much triumphant cawing.—Youth's Companion.

THE GREATEST RAILROAD.

Africa's Famous Cape to Cairo Line Will Be Unique.

When all the great railroad trunks of the world have been built, a decade or two hence, four of them will appear upon the map in heavy black, indicating that they surpass all others in importance. These will be: The Pan-American, from the arctic wastes of Canada to the strait of Magellan; the Transiberian, from the Atlantic to the Pacific across northern Europe and Asia; the Transpacific or some other line, from the southeast of Europe to India, and the Cape to Cairo.

The Pan-American and the Indo-European railways may surpass the Cape to Cairo as commercial arteries, and the Transiberian will doubtless figure more potently as a strategic line, but for the sheer interest of the country traversed—for the picturesque variety and romantic appeal of the panoramas running like double cinematograph films past the car windows—the great African trunk can never know a rival.

Six thousand miles across 65 degrees of latitude; a score of climates, and the lands of a hundred different peoples or tribes; the second longest of the world's rivers and two of its largest lakes; the greatest dam ever built, conserving water for the world's richest lands; the most imposing and ancient of all temples; the greatest waterfall, and the most important gold and diamond mines, and finally one of the last great expanses of real wilderness, the only place in the world where the wild beasts of the jungle may be seen in their primitive state from a train—all these seen, traversed or experienced in twelve days! Surely there can never be another such railway as this.—Lew R. Freeman in World's Work.

The Oldest Warfare.

They were talking of the great wars fought in the days when this old world was considerably younger.

"But, you know," said Pant, "it always seems to me that those old warriors were very much like our modern financiers."

"What on earth do you mean?" asked Mant.

"Well, they were always investing some one else's capital, weren't they?"—London Mail.

AN ABSOLUTELY TRUE STORY

Of How E. L. Marshall of Shreveport, La., Was Cured of a Stomach Trouble That Kept Him Out of Work for Months.

Shreveport, La.—"I had a bad stomach trouble for years and became so weak I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was very poor, then my food would not digest, I bloated and was very weak and nervous, and it seemed impossible to get any relief.
I was so bad I could not work for months at a time. I tried too many remedies to name, but without help. I saw Vinol advertised and tried it, and soon noticed an improvement. I continued its use and now my stomach trouble is completely cured. I am a well man enjoying perfect health and have gained in weight."—E. L. MARSHALL, Shreveport, La.

The recovery of Mr. Marshall was due to the combined action of the medicinal tissue building elements of the extract of cod's livers, aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron, contained in Vinol, which seldom fails to strengthen and tone up the tired, over-taxed and weakened nerves of the stomach and remove the trouble.

Remarkable Memory.

So remarkable is the power of memory in some men that it seems an uncanny mental acquisition. Probably the most remarkable example of the kind was the ability of the celebrated chess player Paul Morphy to play a dozen games of chess at the one time blindfolded—that is, playing the games simultaneously without looking at the chess board, the moves being called to him by number and he calling back his reply.

When the king of Siam was passing through Moscow on his European visit, a white feather fell from the plume of his helmet, and was picked up by a peasant, who hastened to restore it to the chief of police. He was greatly surprised several days later upon receiving from that official, in the name of his Siamese majesty, a casket containing a portrait of the king and a massive gold chain decorated with the royal arms of Siam.

She Admired Bravery

By F. A. MITCHELL

It was in the late autumn. Edith and I were walking in the woods kicking up the dead leaves, for there were only a few left on the trees. We were both young. I twenty-two, Edith eighteen. I was sweet on Edith, and when a man of that age is sweet on a girl the first idea that enters his head is that she can only love a heroic personage who combines every manly attribute. When a man of forty gets sweet on a woman he fears that she won't consider that he has money enough to make it worth her while to marry him.

While Edith and I were walking along to the pleasant sound of the kicked leaves I was thinking about how many virtues I must possess to win her. It was in wartime, and I naturally supposed that military glory would count for a good deal.

"We're getting quite a number of instances of bravery from this war in Europe," I remarked.

"Yes," she replied, "they're splendid.
Just think of a young earl not yet thirty years old, with the life of a nobleman before him, giving his life for his country."

"Would you like to be the widow of such a man?"

"I would grieve for him, but I would glory in having had such a husband."

This was not encouraging for me, a man of peace. It was some time before I tried to find out any more of those traits I did not possess, the absence of which would induce Edith to turn me down.

"I read an account some time ago," I said, "of a Belgian soldier who was placed in front of a company of Germans who were attacking his countrymen. Seeing him, the Belgians lowered their rifles. 'Fire!' he cried. 'For heaven's sake, fire!' A volley swept the Belgian and the Germans away together."

"What a noble sacrifice!" exclaimed
Edith fervently.

"Do you suppose," I said, "that if you had been that Belgian's wife and a witness of the scene and his countrymen had looked to you to approve his order to fire you could have made the sacrifice yourself?"

This was a poser. Edith made no reply for quite awhile; then she said that she would have preferred to compromise by having them fire on her. I was not disposed to let her out in this way and persisted in having a direct answer, whereupon she said that she was afraid the test would be too much for her. She might be able to make the sacrifice and she might not. Of one thing she was certain. Her heart would be buried with that noble Belgian.

It was apparent to me that to win
Edith I must do something heroic.

"Do you know," I said, "I have concluded that this war is a struggle between reaction and progress. I consider it the duty of America to join in it on the side of progress."

"So do I," was the prompt reply.
"What is true of a nation is true of one of its individual citizens."

"What do you mean?"

"That it is my duty to fight for the world's progress. I'm going abroad to enlist."

Edith looked grave.

"Don't you think it my duty?"

"No; I don't."

"Why not? Haven't you agreed with me that it is our duty as a nation to fight on the side of progress, and what is the duty of a nation is the duty of its individual citizens?"

"Yes; I suppose so. But I think it would be very foolish for you to go all the way over there to—to get your self shot."

I looked down sidewise at Edith.
The idea of my making myself food for powder evidently troubled her.

"I sail next week."

There was no comment on this for awhile. Presently Edith asked me in a faltering voice why I had said nothing of this before. I was some time framing my answer. When it came I spoke in a choked voice:

"Because I dread a parting."

"With whom?" She kept her eyes bent on the ground.

"You," I faltered.

I went on to tell her that I loved her,
and she confessed that my love was returned.

"How hard for us to part," I said.

"On the eve of our betrothal!"

"We will not part," she said firmly.

"My duty calls."

"What duty?"

"To progress, civilization, the cause of freedom."

"Let it call."

"I might have an opportunity to die one of those noble deaths we have been talking about."

"You'll do no such thing. You'll stay at home."

"But think how proud you will be of your soldier lover."

"I don't want a soldier lover."

"Must I go unsupported by the knowledge that you are willing to sacrifice?"

"You'll not go at all."

We were sitting on a low horizontal limb of a tree. Edith threw her arms around me to hold me from going to fight for an idea which I had no idea of fighting for. I gave in at last and consented to remain at home.

After we were married one night we heard burglars below. My wife in order to prevent my going down to attack them locked the door and threw the key out from the window.

Not Entirely Perfect.

"I understand that this prison has been thoroughly reformed." "Yes," replied the gentlemanly convict. "The only fault we have to find now is the necessity of associating with so uncultured a person as the warden."

Easy To Darken

Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called
"Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruft is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.
